The Coloring Box

Granted, the drapes match the rug. But the color scheme just ain't working – maybe because the whole matchy-matchy look is so last season. (Apologies, LiLo.)

Time to refurbish your special no-no place with a jazzy fall color: Put your triangle's tresses in the capable hands of Betty, the first dye created especially for your down-there hair. The easy-to-use formula is safe enough for your sensitive lady place. And if your orchid is wilting, fear not – Betty easily covers grays.

Decorate your fuzzy éclair with a variety of icings, like subtle auburn, blonde, brown, and black. Not enough options (or unsettling euphemisms) for ya? Feather your nest with FunBetty, an oh-no-she-didn't pink. The driplless formula guarantees that no dye will sully your pee-pee's teepee, and your new plumage is more than certain to attract plenty of male attention.

So go on and wash that man right into your hair.
